Oklahomans for Excellence in Science Education, Inc. (OESE) is a non-profit educational organization that promotes the education of the public about the methods and values of science and advocates excellence in the science curriculum. Activities include participation in educational and scientific organization conferences, workshops for science teachers, operation of a speakers' bureau, maintenance of an informational list serve, and related activities. The formation of OESE in 1999 was prompted by attempts to diminish the teaching of evolution in Oklahoma public schools. OESE has fought all such attempts. Science is a process of observation, hypothesis testing, and the development of explanations for observed phenomena. The validity of any given explanation is based on its ability to account accurately for the data via testable natural mechanisms. OESE will vigorously oppose the teaching of pseudosciences that pose as science but fail to meet the widely accepted standards of the field.
